MURDER AT HAMAKUA .- By a letter from Hawaii, we learn that on the evening of April 28, in the district of Hamakus, Hawali, a man by the name of Nabehan beat a woman named Hallaka, kicked and dragged her until she was senseless. There were present three or four persons, who appear to have made no attempt to prevent the murder. The woman died during the night of the assault. A coroner's inquest was held, which found that the woman came to her death from inluries inflicted by Naihehan. who was arrested and locked up in Walpio fall.

A MONSTER SHARK .- The London Daily News says: "It will be recollected that in a late issue we announced the stranding of an immense shark at Shankin, in the Isle of Wight. The skin of this huge fish has now arrived in London, having been purchased for the British Museum. The difficult operation of taking the skin off so gigantic a creature has been admirably carried out by Mr. Gerrard, Jr. whose ability in preparing skeletons for the British Museum is well known. Its total length is 29 feet, its circumference 15 feet at the largest part. Its teeth are exceedingly small, and not the least like the large white ivory teeth seen in sharks of museums; they are, on the contrary, very small and set with intercat's teeth. This is the basking shark-squalus maxnus, ectorinus maximus, squalus elephas, sail-fish, hos-mother, or homer of Orkney, sun-fish, west coast of Ireland. It is not, however, to be confounded with the sun-fish-orthogoriscus mola-that is, the shape of the sun. These hoge sharks appear in considerable numbers in the spring along the north-west coast of Donegal and Clew Bay. The Sun-fish Bank is probably the first shoal water made by the fish oming in from the Atlantic. It is possible they come there to spawn, passing the rest of their lives in the deep waters of the Atlantic. Little or nothing is known of the habits of this fish, which is probably the largest among known sharks. Couch records one taken in Cornwall measuring thirty-one feet eight inches. It is supposed that they swallow their prey alive. The Irish fishermen spear them for the sake of the oil which is to be obtained from their liver. This fish, when floating on the water, is frequently taken for the whale on account of its somewhat sluggish movements. Hence it is also called the basking shark. It is supposed that the present specimen had lost its way, being bound probably for the west coast
